

SOLDIERS SEEK REFUGE FROM STORM

Tents Blown Down, They Are Sheltered in Churches, Schools and Private Residences—None Injured And None Ill.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

McAllen, Tex., Aug. 20.—By special courier to San Antonio, Tex., Aug. 21.—The sun is shining again today and the only reminders of the hurricane which swept the valley Friday afternoon and part of Saturday are the spaces where the tents stood in camp, roads caked with mud, and a few mired trucks and autos.

The soldiers are in the best of health and spirits. Not a sick or injured man has been reported.

About two hundred tents went down during Friday afternoon and night. The wires leading from McAllen, with the exception of a single line to Harlingen, went down on Friday afternoon and there has been no telegraphic communication to or from the outside world since. The wires north of Harlingen have been down, word being received here that from six to ten miles of poles are flat on the ground.

McAllen, while cut off from the rest of the world, was really in no danger. Men from the camp came into town, abandoning "flops" on the wet ground. They cleaned out every eating place in town and found beds with the military police, in the churches, school houses and unoccupied houses and on the floor in the hallways and bathrooms of the McAllen Hotel. And notwithstanding that many of the soldiers had very quiet nights in the town. Coffee was being served the boys until after midnight and the same thing was being done in the camp. The officers had nothing to do with the storm and put up with the discomforts of the storm which rattled and shook and flung down the tents through the night. Even General O'Ryan's bungalow did not escape the storm. The roof was torn off and the general found a place to sleep between the leaks.

The 71st and the 14th Regiments at Sterling's ranch and La Gloria, on the bike, got the full force of the storm. The ground at Sterlings where the 71st was is sandy and this prevented a flood, but the tent pegs could not hold and the pup tents were scattered far and near. The boys took refuge in the farm houses. The school in the station at Monte Cristo, in the one saloon in the district where the 71st was quartered.

Thirty men from the Fourteenth at La Gloria hiked four and a half miles through the storm to the field hospital of the Seventy-first and the latter took care of 125 men and breakfasted them in the morning.

Yesterday the 71st were paid by the federal paymaster for June and July. Only five men from the regiment, notwithstanding the storm, were sent back to the hospital on sick leave. The one chance to get in touch with the outside world was by the wireless at camp. The forty foot mast of the wireless went by the board soon after the storm broke and cut off the hope. But the mast is now in shape again and communication reopened to Brownsville.

HAS CHANGED HIS MIND.

Neuberger Would Now Like Trial in Delaware County.

A somewhat belated motion to change the place of trial of the negligence action brought by Franklin N. Neuberger against the town of Hancock, Delaware county, from Sullivan to Delaware, was made before Judge Hasbrouck on Saturday.

The action is for personal injuries and damages to an automobile. George W. Mosher was with the plaintiff at the time of the accident. The action was begun in October of last year and the defendant moved it for trial at the December term of the supreme court in Sullivan county. At the May term it was noticed by both litigants, and now the plaintiff desires to have it changed to Delaware county for the convenience of witnesses. Another reason for changing is the comparative length of the calendars of the two counties, Sullivan having had 203 cases on the December term calendar and Delaware have had 67 on the February term calendar. Judge Hasbrouck said that the latter matter was of no moment as two litigants each anxious to proceed could have their case tried. Vincent N. Elwood of Hancock appeared for the plaintiff and the motion.

Judge Joseph Roach of Liberty, who appeared for the town of Hancock, claimed that the plaintiff, by agreeing to an examination of himself before trial, had waived any right to move for a change of venue. To Judge Hasbrouck's question whether there was any allegation of intimidation, Judge Roach said there was not, not only on account of existing conditions there but also because the plaintiff was on his way to Downsville to preach when the accident occurred.

Judge Hasbrouck reserved decision.

Grebb Divorce Suit.

The action for divorce brought by Henry C. Grebb against Edith A. Grebb was heard by Judge Hasbrouck on Saturday and decision was reserved. The parties were married November 14, 1911, and reside at Albany. While they were living at Delmar, near Albany, it was testified that Mrs. Grebb received attentions from a man named Smith.

WATER WAGON GETS A JOLT

Metcalfe of Lloyd Refuses to be a Cat's Paw and Dr. Sahler Warns Democrats to Keep Off.

What was styled the opportunity of the prohibition party to name and elect an assemblyman through an arrangement with the Democratic party was the cause of a distinctly jarring note in the unofficial designating convention of the Drys which was convened Saturday afternoon in the supervisor's room at the court house. Fred L. Metcalfe of the town of Lloyd was the man who threw the monkey wrench into the smooth-running machinery of the gathering when he refused to be the nominee for assembly in the second district under any such scheme, incidentally saying that Assemblyman A. P. LeFevre had done good service in that capacity.

The discussion started when the Rev. Dr. P. N. Chase, the secretary, told of the committee on judicial nominations having decided to endorse the Republican candidate for the supreme court. Justice Wesley O. Howard of Troy. In telephoning around about Judge Howard's running mate, Charles E. Nichols of Delaware county, Dr. Chase said that the committee for that county had pronounced Mr. Nichols undesirable timber. Hence, it was decided to write in the name of the Democratic candidate, County Judge George H. Smith, of Sullivan county. Because of this action, the Democrats are greatly pleased according to Dr. Chase, and the leader of that party told the speaker that the Democrats would leave their assembly designation blank and that the prohibitionists could designate a man whom the Democrats would subsequently endorse.

"Such a thing never came to us before," said Dr. Chase, "and it is an opportunity, an enticing wedge."

Somebody then nominated Fred L. Metcalfe of the town of Lloyd for the combined designation but Mr. Metcalfe was quickly on his feet. "I must positively decline," he said, "for two reasons. First I am not the strong man with the Democrats that you may think and so I cannot take the bait. Secondly, as a friend of A. P. LeFevre, the present assemblyman, I would not care to run in opposition to him. He has taken right on a good many questions at Albany. He has made some mistakes as I should have mistakes."

The Rev. Mr. Anthony of Connelly then said as a Christian minister he could not endorse Mr. LeFevre. Secretary Chase said he would have the debate confined to nominations.

Dr. C. O. Sahler rose to state that he was not in sympathy with endorsing other people's candidates and that he for one did not propose to be used as a cat's paw by the Democratic party. He wanted the Democratic party to keep out of the prohibition shop and forcefully stated his reasons for his attitude, saying the Democrats knew they could not beat LeFevre.

Finally James B. Palmer of Plattekill was named and after stating that "he had almost run his legs off" for other offices for the good of the party, he was prevailed upon to accept the designation.

Designations for county offices are as follows:

For District Attorney—Frederick G. Traver.

For County Treasurer—Irving J. Rose.

For Coroner—Dr. John I. Becker of Highland.

For Assembly, 1st District—George W. Terpening of Saugerties.

For Assembly, 2d District—James B. Palmer of Plattekill.

Other designations have been made as follows:

For Congressman—Edward A. Smiley.

For Senator—Luther L. Osterhout.

Signing of petitions for designations occupied the remainder of the time before adjournment.

The Rev. Mr. Anthony delivered a brief speech in praise of the Rev. Dr. Chase of whom he quoted the state chairman as declaring to be one of the best of the committeemen in the state, "a man who tends to things."

J. L. Schultz of Esopus, county chairman, presided over the session.

Committees on vacancies were named as follows:

County Officers—Dr. C. O. Sahler, the Rev. Dr. P. N. Chase, Eugene Mott.

Assembly, 1st District—Lorenzo Short, Walter E. Hyatt and D. B. Hendricks.

Assembly, 2d District—John L. Schultz, John P. Ganoung and Leslie Herring.

QUARANTINE OF ADULTS NOW.

Some Massachusetts Cities Think Adults Carry Disease Germs.

That infantile paralysis germs may be carried by healthy adults is the theory of health experts in New York which has been borne out by bacteriologists and laboratory investigators in the federal health service. Acting on this theory, it is believed, some Massachusetts cities are quarantining adults. A Kingston man going for a visit to Worcester last week was given his choice between returning to New York state or spending two weeks quarantined at the home of relatives. He returned to Kingston on the next train.

YOUNG GIRLS ARE WORTH $500 EACH

"Vice Trust" Figures Revealed in New York Prosecution of White Slavers—Entertainments and "Elopements" Used to Lure Victims.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, Aug. 21.—A fine looking sixteen year old girl just out of the public school, whose parents are poor and do not speak English, is worth $500.

This is one of the revelations in the confession of Yushe Botwin, leading white slave trader, with whose assistance Assistant District Attorney James E. Smith, co-operating with the authorities in large cities throughout the country, hopes to place the leaders in this frightful business behind bars.

In 1912-13 a "vice trust" was discovered here. Several of its leaders were put in jail. Exposures were made in newspapers, magazines, books and even theaters. It was quite generally believed the traffic in young girls was broken up.

But today we learn the business is again going on, with many of the old leaders still at work, but using more refined means.

The old methods of serving "knockout drops" and oftentimes using force have been abandoned. They were found dangerous and unnecessary.

Instead, the vice trust leaders have agents, usually women, watching schools in poor neighborhoods. Their prey are school girls between fourteen and sixteen years of age.

These girls speak English well, have lost the foreign appearance of their parents and constitute the cream of the "trade."

A careful study is made of their home life. Only such girls are approached as are found to have unattractive surroundings and whose parents are ignorant of American laws and customs.

Once a girl is selected as a likely candidate, the young men called "cadets" employed by the vice magnates set out to turn her head.

Making her acquaintance is often done in the moving picture houses. Botwin named two picture shows which he said were run by their proprietors especially for this purpose.

The girl is then taken to dances where she has a gay time. Automobile rides to Coney Island follow, and perhaps a fine meal at a glittering restaurant. Insidiously the cadets contrast this life with her home conditions and she is made dissatisfied.

The only hint of force comes just after the cadet has decided it is time to ruin his victim and take her from her home forever. She is hurried to another city in a nearby state and there coaxed or cajoled into writing a letter to her parents saying she has eloped and is very happy. Like as not, the old folks believe this story.

The girl is now entirely in her captors' grasp. She is given very little of her earnings—this goes to the slavers who own her. A few weeks later the slavers consider it safe to bring her back to New York.

Here she is put into a resort under an assumed name. She begins to realize what has happened, but usually is too ashamed to reveal her story, even if not too terrified to make a complaint. District Attorney Smith has found it necessary in many cases to keep such young victims apart from their associates for ten days or two weeks before they finally are willing to tell their history.

FOURTH WEEK OF SUMMER SCHOOL

Owing to the fact that W. J. Colville's arrival has been delayed until Tuesday, W. Frederick Keeler has kindly consented to stay over today and lecture at 3 o'clock in the pavilion at Sahler's summer school.

His powerful eloquent talks on metaphysical healing will be greatly missed by hosts of admiring friends whom he reluctantly will leave to go to his new field of labor.

This evening at 8 o'clock the Rev. J. J. Henry, who so delighted the school last year, will be the attraction. There will be a rare treat in hearing Mr. Henry's lecture for they always team with rare wit and pleasurable humor. One feels lighter of heart and brighter of spirit listening to his many amusing yet truthful anecdotes.

Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, and then succeeding afternoon until August 31, inclusive, Prof. W. J. Colville, the master psychologist, will be the special attraction in the pavilion. Owing to his phenomenal popularity last year, we need say but little as an introduction to this, the brightest star that shines in the firmament of metaphysical research.

Mr. Colville is a man of unique personality and captivates his audience at once. At times he arises to heights of eloquence and oratory which is a delight to the most skeptical, inasmuch as he is able to clothe the most occult metaphysical truths in language so simple that the most unlearned can understand.

This week, therefore, is destined to be a record breaker in attendance and helpful meditations.

Tuesday evening's entertainment has not fully been arranged, but a complete synopsis will be given in tomorrow's paper.

Wednesday evening will be moving picture night, which always taxes the capacity of the pavilion to its limit.

Thursday evening another fine musical has been arranged for which bids fair to outshine, if that were possible, the one of two weeks ago. A complete program will be found in Thursday's papers.

Friday evening will appear that remarkable personage, Miss Jessie A. Fowler, the last representative of the Fowler and Wells Phenological Institute of New York, and London, England. Her lectures and teachings on this most interesting subject are known to be the most authoritative in the world. She will demonstrate by giving delineations of character, using volunteers from the audience.

The different evening entertainments to be given the balance of the summer school course will be announced in the local papers at a later date.

GRANGE REPORTER QUARTER CENTURY

Editor J. W. Darrow Dead at Home in Chatham Aged 61 Years—Funeral Largely Attended This Afternoon.

J. W. Darrow, one of the best known newspaper men of the state and for many years a prolific press correspondent for the National and State Grange, died early Saturday morning at his home in Chatham after an illness of several weeks duration. He was 61 years old. The funeral which was held this afternoon from the Reformed Church in Chatham was largely attended.

Born in Manlius, N. Y., J. Wallace Darrow was the son of the late Daniel Darrow, a sometime resident of Cabaan, N. Y. He was early interested in weekly newspaper work and at the age of 31 years became the editor and publisher of the Chatham Courier which he conducted up to a year ago. During the thirty years he was in charge of the Courier, Mr. Darrow was also the publisher of the "Grange Review" and author of several Grange publications. He was connected with the New York State Grange and was press representative of the National Grange and past master of the Chatham Grange. For 20 years he had been superintendent of the Reformed Church Sunday school and elder of the church for the past 12 or 15 years. He was a member of Columbia lodge No. 98, F. and A. M. OSCAR TO QUIT WALDORF.

Famous Chef to Leave Bridge or Anything He Likes After 1918.

Oscar is going to quit the Waldorf Astoria New York. No one need get alarmed, however, for he will not make his departure for two years. But at the end of that time he is really going. Mr. Tschirky, gentleman farmer, will be Oscar's occupation, beginning in 1918. By that time he will have completed a quarter of a century in the service of George W. Boldt. During that period his reputation as a hotel man and his given name have become known around the world.

Oscar has a 600-acre estate just north of New Paltz, where he can live as quietly as he likes. In fact, he can be ultra exclusive when he wants to, for to get to his chateau you have to cross a drawbridge over a private lake—which bridge Oscar can have raised if he wishes and leave you flat on the other side. He gave a party there a few days ago to a group of hotel men, at which he announced his intended retirement. He is wealthier probably than the average guest at the Waldorf Astoria.

ITALY'S INTEREST IN IMMIGRATION

Fate of Proposed American Legislation Not Worrying Government at Rome as Labor Will be Nation's Chief Asset After War—Future Emigration Less.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Rome, Aug. 21.—Dr. Joseph De Michelis, Royal Commissioner of Emigration for the North American Division, discussing the proposed new American immigration bill today said that Italy no longer takes a deep interest in the final fate of the bill.

"The fact is," Dr. De Michelis said, "that after the war men as a national asset will be immensely more valuable and the price of labor immensely dearer than it now is. The larger the devastation and the longer the war, the higher the value of men sound of body and mind. Thanks to the peculiar nature of her war, to the density of her population, and to the high birth-rate, which insures for many years to come a constant growth of the number of inhabitants, Italy is one of the few nations whose losses in men in the war will not materially affect the make-up of her population.

"And for Italy one of the consequences of the present war will be a radical reversal of the policy which up to a year or so ago regulated her emigration. While in a country governed by liberal institutions, the individual cannot be restrained from following his own inclination, yet, in the face of the tremendous problems which will confront the nation after the war is over, the government will be fully justified in adopting such measures concerning emigration as will best serve their solution. No we shall never put a veto to emigration, but we shall regulate it according to best interests of the country.

"Very few people realize the tremendous industrial transformation Italy is undergoing even in the midst of the greatest, bloodiest and most expensive war she has ever fought. It was only when importation ceased and commercial intercourse with Germany was prohibited that Italy discovered the large number of articles for which the nation was tributary to foreign manufacturers. From needles to agricultural implements, there was a large variety of articles which we found ourselves obliged to manufacture in order to meet the insistent demand. This required the transformation of a large number of our laborers into mechanics. The establishment of war industries, arms and ammunition factories, has greatly helped in solving this problem. Besides, these factories have been organized in such a way as to be easily transformed into shops for the manufacture of other articles the very day the guns cease roaring and the millions of men now scattered along our border return to the blessed pursuits of peace.

"In my opinion these new industries will easily absorb a large part of that surplus of our population which formerly crossed the Atlantic. These mechanics no longer earn a few cents a day and while the pay of a skilled mechanic in Italy is not as high as in America, yet this pay is considerably higher than what the common laborer receives in America. Thus the incentive to emigrate is forever removed and the increase in their earning is more than sufficient to keep the laborer at home even without considering the fact that no mortal being is more attached to his native land than the Italian peasant.

"And this is not all. Think of the reconstruction work to be done in France, Belgium, Trentin and other places after the war is over. Italy has already negotiated a treaty with France for the supply of labor. The probability is that France will need more Italian labor than the hour comes of repairing the devastation in her invaded provinces. Belgium will also need labor, even Germany will need a large number of emigrants to work her mines. Italy will then be in a position to secure for emigrant population better working conditions than she has hitherto been able to impose.

"I don't think that in the future Italian emigration to the United States will be as large as it used to be. The huge total of 1907, when it reached nearly 600,000, is a thing of the past. It was a record which will never be beaten."

NOT WISELY BUT TOO WELL.

Officers of Clinton Avenue Raised Auto Quarantine.

The automobile quarantine on the upper end of Clinton avenue, above Main street, was raised Saturday after guards had been posted at each end of the asphalt stretch when had been heavily coated with oil the first thing in the morning. Screenings from the city stone crushing plant were placed on the surface and skidding dangers thereby eliminated. What the effect the screenings will have on the asphalt is problematical but these will likely be cleaned off with oil at an early date. It is said the experiment will not be repeated, but no one has yet come forward to assume responsibility for the oiling.

ZEPPELINS SAVED THE GERMAN FLEET

By Telegram to The Freeman.

The Hague, Aug. 21.—Thirty-seven of Germany's finest battleships, battle cruisers and light cruisers comprised the high seas fleet which put out Saturday in the hope of annihilating some detached portion of the British fleet, but returned to its base when it became apparent that the British commander had expected just such a stroke, according to information received here today.

In addition the German warships were accompanied by a destroyer and submarine flotilla, while three Zeppelin air ships were the above-sea scouts.

According to the same reports, only the Zeppelins saved the German fleet from running into a carefully set trap. These warned the German admiral just in time to prevent his coming into contact with the part of the British fleet with which, in view of British preponderance, would have been nothing less than disastrous.

LOOKING UP LATEST "BROWN PERIL" TALE

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, Aug. 21.—Reports that the Japanese government, through a Spanish agent, has obtained a land concession of sixty thousand acres on the Atlantic seaboard of Panama, are being investigated by United States agents of the United States. Secretary of State Lansing today admitted that the investigation is under way, but he refused to discuss it further.

According to the unofficial reports which have reached the state department, the land is to be used by Japan as a naval base. The Spaniard who is alleged to have obtained the land for Japan, is an agent in Havana, Cuba, for Japanese silk firms.

Already several reports have been received by the Latin-American bureau of the state department by its agents investigating the reports. Officials of this bureau refused absolutely today to say whether or not the reports so far received confirmed the unofficial advice.

METROPOLITAN AGENTS' OUTING

The annual midsummer outing of the field representatives of the Kingston District of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, covering Ulster and Greene counties, was held at Cuneo's Lake Katrine Inn on Saturday afternoon. Twenty-five of the field representatives were present.

Informal field day sports filled the early afternoon hours and a baseball game was one of the features of the day. Bathing and fishing found popular support among the men and all talk of business was strictly prohibited for the day. The men took the occasion to welcome back into the work E. S. Decker and S. T. Beatty, who recently returned from military duty at Camp Whitman.

The lake was opened late in the afternoon and was served in the style for which Manager Cuneo has become famous. The sports and the lake were thoroughly enjoyed by everyone and the outing served to strengthen the spirit of co-operation between the men and the company which always has existed. The return home was made in the early evening.

Restricted C. of C. Membership.

A membership strictly limited to 200, dues raised to $25 a year, and the beginning of a waiting list of applicants for admission are the main features of a new policy which is to be inaugurated by the Poughkeepsie Chamber of Commerce with the beginning of the new year. The details of the plan are now being settled by the leaders of that body and will be presented later in the year for the action of the directors.

ALTRUISM OF ULSTER COUNTY

Action of Board of Supervisors Contrasted With That of Orange County Supervisors on Highway Matters.

The village of Wallkill soon is to have its first improved road. The Board of Supervisors of Ulster county some weeks ago approved plans for the reconstruction of the highway from the village to St. Elmo, connecting with the North Plank road from Newburgh, and the past week the state highway department opened bids on the work, which will begin at once. It is worthy of note that, aside from the benefit to Wallkill, the proposed road is mainly for the benefit of Orange county and Newburgh. If Ulster county had been thinking only of itself, its supervisors probably would have provided for the improvement of a road leading up the Wallkill toward Gardiner and New Paltz. Instead they carry to its destination the North Plank road, which several years ago was constructed out North street from this city to the Ulster county line. The new stretch of road, giving Wallkill people an all-improved route to Newburgh, may be no sooner constructed than the Ulster supervisors will plan for an extension of the route over the Shawangunk mountains to Ellenville, thus completing the restoration of the old North Plank road. To Newburgh this improvement will be second in importance only to the reconstruction of the old Cohecton turnpike, which has yet to be extended from there to connect with trunk road No. 4. In view of what Ulster county is doing, is it too much to expect this more rich and populous county to do its part in connecting up roads between Ulster and Orange, particularly in view of the fact that latter reaps the chief advantage? From the heart of Kingston down through Rifton, New Paltz, Modena and Plattkill to the Orange county line there is improved highway every foot of the way. From the county line into the North Plank road, running into Newburgh, there is a narrow dirt road, failure to improve which is a reproach to Orange county. Ulster county does not need this connection; it is not asking Orange county to provide it; but this section of Orange county needs it and has been asking for it for years, but little satisfaction is to be obtained from the board of supervisors. There is much trade from the Plattkill section which would come to Newburgh if an all-improved route were provided, and Newburgh should better itself before the county board to obtain the improvement.—Newburgh News.

VANDERLYN'S WORK IN PARIS.

Interesting Sidelines on Paintings of a Diplomat's Family.

Recently mention was made in these columns of the gift of several copies of family portraits by Vanderlyn to the Senate House by Miss Annie Marsh of Brooklyn. How these portraits came to be painted is an interesting story connected with the early studies of the Kingston artist in Paris and the diplomatic duties of one of Miss Marsh's ancestors. Edward Church of Boston, a descendant of Col. Benjamin Church of King Philip war, was first American minister to Portugal. While in Lisbon, a French vessel was wrecked on the coast and he paid the expenses of the few survivors back to France for which act the French government presented him with the freedom of the city of Paris and he bought a villa at Passy, next to the one owned by Madame Recamier, where he lived during the French Revolution.

Vanderlyn, the artist, brought letters of introduction to him and Mr. Church commissioned Vanderlyn to draw portraits of his wife, son and four daughters, copies of which are now in the Senate House in the Vanderlyn room. His only son, Edward, was a friend of both Franklin and Fulton. He was with the latter when he tried his boat on the Seine in 1802. Two grandsons of his are Episcopal ministers in California. Anna Church, the eldest daughter, married Daniel Strobel of Charleston, S. C., who was at one time American consul at Liverpool; his only descendant living is a grandson, Prof. D. S. Martin, of Brooklyn.

A younger daughter, Sarah, (Mrs. Benjamin Strobel), was educated at Madame Campan's school with the daughter of the Empress Josephine and the sisters of Napoleon; one of them, Pauline, gave her schoolmate a fan which is in the possession of her granddaughter. Her living granddaughters are Mrs. Edward A. Shepard and Miss Ella Strobel, of New York, Miss Annie Marsh of Brooklyn and a great-grandson, Allen E. Shepard, of New York.

Accident Was Unavoidable.

Waiving his right not to testify at the inquest into the death of Francis Proper, the young boy who was struck and killed by the automobile he was driving, Elmer Smith, Jr., of Cairo, N. Y., chauffeur for Henry W. Miller of New York city, took the witness stand in city court, Poughkeepsie, on Friday afternoon and told the story of the accident to Coroner Harry Selfridge. Smith testified the accident was unavoidable, and that the car was not traveling over 15 miles an hour. A number of other witnesses testified and all agreed as to the rate of speed and that the boy ran out in front of the car without warning. The coroner reserved decision. The parents of the dead boy were former residents of Kingston.

Just Tired of Him.

Two small boys who lived next door to each other had a falling out. For three days Teddy remained at home and played with his sister in his own yard. Finally his father asked: "What is the matter, Teddy, you don't seem to go and play with Raymond any more? Are you angry with him?" "No," replied the boy, "I ain't mad at him, I just lost my taste for him, that's all."

Galatea, gingham, serge, linen or percale may be used for this model. It is also good for velvet, corduroy, taffeta, mixed suitings, cashmere or gabardine. The fronts and back are cut long in panel effect, and the waist sections are lengthened by plaited portions, that may be trimmed with the pointed tabs. If preferred a belt may be used as shown in the small view. The sleeve in wrist length has a band cuff. In short length, a band holds the gathers at lower edge. The pattern provides a chemise for high neck finish. The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. Size 8 years requires 3 yards of 44 inch material.

A pattern of this illustration, mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Rondout, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

LAWYER ADVISED OBEDIENCE TO LAW

What promised to result in a test case to define the extent of the powers of town health officials during the infantile paralysis epidemic was avoided Friday night when, after a deadlock had appeared certain, Harry Martin of Poughkeepsie, agreed to obey the mandate of Health Officer McCabe of Millbrook and Pleasant Valley to return to Poughkeepsie with his children. The agreement was reached only after Martin had taken his case to Clarence J. Drake, his attorney, and had received the advice not to put up a fight. Martin had rented a cottage at Pleasant Valley, and had planned to take his children there to keep them away from possible contact with the disease. He also expected to take the Robbins family of Newark, N. J., relatives, with him. When the health officer learned that the Robbinses were also going to Pleasant Valley he ordered the entire party to quit the town. This Martin refused to do even after he had been threatened with arrest. Twelve o'clock noon Friday was fixed as a final time for the departure, and when the Martins remained beyond that time a clash seemed certain. Attorney Drake appeared in time to arrange for a peaceful settlement and legal difficulties were avoided.

The KITCHEN CABINET

Who has not wanted, does not guess. What plenty is—who has not groped in depths of doubt and hopelessness, has never truly hoped.—Riley.

HOT WEATHER FOOD AND DRINK.

Cut potatoes into shoestrings and put a layer into a buttered baking dish, sprinkle with salt and pepper and cover with grated Swiss cheese. Fill the dish and drop a few pieces of melted butter over the top. After that, pour a few tablespoonsful of milk into the dish and bake in a moderate oven. Sprinkle minced parsley over the top and serve.

Bonny Clabber.—Rich milk that has been allowed to sour until firm is then served with brown sugar and a grating of nutmeg.

Rhubarb Charlotte.—Cook a quart of rhubarb until tender, using very little water. Add sugar to taste, a scant tablespoonful of butter, and the grated rind of a lemon. Chill and just before serving add the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs; put into a glass dish and cover with whipped cream.

Tea Punch.—Pour two quarts of boiling water over two teaspoonfuls of tea and let it steep just five minutes. Strain over two pounds of sugar and let stand until cool. Break a small ripe pineapple into bits and add the juice of eight lemons. Put this all into the tea mixture, add a few choice cherries and serve well iced.

Lemonade.—The best lemonade, as well as the easiest to serve, is that prepared in a strainer. Allow half as much sugar as water and boil for five minutes. Wash six lemons and wipe dry; press lemons of lost sugar into the skins until they are full of oil, add these to the strainer and the juice of the lemons; boil up to scald and put into a glass jar; set in the ice chest, and when wanted use a little of the strainer in a glass of iced water.

Currant Punch.—This is a simple drink which may be given to the children during the hot weather. Boil together a pint and a half of water and a cupful of sugar for ten minutes; then add the juice of four lemons and two oranges. Strain and add a pint of currant jelly, or currant juice may be used. Add a pint of mineral water and plenty of ice just as it is served.

DIET AND REDDIE SAW ALL THE SIGHTS

James Diet and Elbert Reddie, two negroes from East Kingston, had a rather exciting time in Kingston on Saturday evening. They came here for an evening's enjoyment, and proceeded to tank up. Later in the evening they hired a taxicab to convey them back home. When the taxi drew up to where the two men were waiting to get in the fun started. Both men were so drunk that each tried to help the other in the car, and were so noisy over the job that Policemen Snyder and Simpson finally placed them under arrest and took them to the city hall.

Reddie proved to be the drunker of the two, and was locked up in the city hall lockup for the night, while Diet was paroled until Sunday morning after furnishing a cash bond of $5 for his appearance. Diet then jumped into the taxi which he had paid for and started for East Kingston. On the way he thought that the driver was not going the right way in order to reach East Kingston, and jumped out of the taxi without opening the door, breaking the glass.

Sunday morning Recorder Lang fined Diet $2 after he had paid his remaining $3 to the taxicab driver to repay the damage to the window. Reddie, the other negro, only had $5 and he was fined $4 and directed to pay $1 to Billy Scott, the night janitor of the city hall, for his trouble in renovating Reddie's sleeping quarters in the lockup. Reddie during Saturday night had been taken ill in the cell.

GABRIEL BOUGHT SAFETY.

After Leading His Driver a Chase He Knew Where to Stop.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Headquarters, American Punitive Expedition, Mexico, Aug. 21.—The army motor truck train is a highly efficient unit of the American army and plays an important part in the life of this expedition. And the truck drivers, as picturesque a set of pirates as ever scuttled a can of gasoline, bring a new type into the service that is not without merit.

There is something heroic about driving the immense cars across the forbidding trails that try to jerk the wheels from the drivers' hands and send the motors sputtering to destruction in some deep and rocky arroyo.

Put it is doubtful if the motors and their drivers will ever achieve the fame of the army mule and his master, the army mule skinner. There is an intelligence behind muleish mischief that cannot be achieved by a disordered carburetor in the center of the desert. There is an element in the contest of muleish stubbornness and mule-skinner's language that is not rivalled when a motor settles down in the deepest rut and refuses to budge.

This is the story of one of these contests:

Gabriel, a wise old mule that has become a veteran in the service, took advantage of his master's carelessness at the picket line. He slipped a loose halter, edged toward the end of the line and a moment later, too, the mule-skinner discovered Gabriel's flight and singled the atmosphere with conversation that would never pass the censor.

"Oh, you double-eyed offspring of perdition," he remarked when he grew calmer. "I sure will skin you alive for this."

Then he picked up a young log, about the size of a wagon tongue, and started in pursuit. Gabriel made a regular mule's chase of it. He waited until the mule-skinner was within striking distance. Then, with a gay flip of his heels, he was off to a point a quarter of a mile distant. Here he paused long enough to bray ironically.

"May all the alfalfa you eat turn to barbed wire in your copper-riveted insides," swore the mule-skinner, as he trudged through the alkali dust in pursuit. By this time the whole camp was watching. Brother mule-skinner was offering sarcastic advice to Gabriel's master. Gabriel rolled lazily in the dust, wagged his ears, brayed some more and otherwise informed the world that he was having a splendid time.

The chase lasted two hours. Even Gabriel seemed to tire. As for the mule-skinner, he was reduced to an exhausted human, spurred on only by the desire to capture one slender-legged mule and splinter the club he still carried between the two long ears. Gabriel loafed along toward Officers' Row, with the mule-skinner dog-trotting in pursuit.

In front of General Pershing's tent waves the red flag with a white star that symbolizes the commander's quarters. Toward this flag Gabriel ambled. There, with a meek and innocent look in his eyes, Gabriel came to a stop and waited.

To the spot the mule-skinner crept, taking a fresh hold with both hands on his club. He waved it a couple of times testily as he came.

"Now you sin-spotted brute," he hissed. "Now I'm going to beat your head into a pulp."

And then General Pershing stepped for a moment from his tent and surveyed the scene. The mule-skinner dropped his club. He approached Gabriel softly. He patted his neck tenderly.

"Why do you act like this, Gabriel?" he asked. "Why can't you be like the other nice mules?"

Then he led Gabriel away. Gabriel, the veteran, smiled a wise, muleish smile.

SECRETS OF COMFORT.

Though sometimes small evils, like invisible insects, inflict pain and a single hair may stop a vast machine, yet the chief secret of comfort lies in not suffering trifles to vex one and in prudently cultivating an undergrowth of small pleasures, since very few great ones, alas, are let on long leases.

The Art of Carpentry.

How many common figurative expressions in our language are borrowed from the art of carpentry may be seen from the following sentence: "The lawyer who filed the bill, shaved the note, cut an acquaintance, split a half-made an entry, got up a case, framed an indictment, impounded a jury, put them into a box, nailed a witness, hammered a judge and bored a whole court, all in one day, has since laid down law and turned carpenter."

Wasted Labor.

KINGSTON, N. Y., AUG. 21, 1916.

We are free to admit that our technical knowledge of the business of railroading is not sufficient to enable us to say confidently where justice lies in the dispute between the companies and their employees. We are also sure that President Wilson is equally incompetent to do so. All that he thinks he knows about the subject is what some one has told him, and it is well known that he usually seeks for facts and advice in the poorest places. It is outrageous that the Presidential power should be used to oppress business. The controversy should be settled by arbitrators after a thorough examination of all the facts. Since Wilson is determined to substitute his own arbitrary decision for the orderly procedure indicated, he cannot complain if the public reaches the conclusion that he is recklessly trying to make votes for himself by siding with the many against the few, right or wrong. We think that the political value of this proceeding is on a par with its righteousness.

A three year building program calling for the construction of eight capital ships, four battleships and four battle cruisers, together with a swarm of lesser craft is the final agreement between both houses of Congress upon the naval policy of the United States. In brief this means $1 new vessels of all classes the first year and a total of 157 within the three year period—precisely the measure urged by Republicans when the House of Representatives first considered President Wilson's recommendation for a continuing program of naval construction. Just now while the President and Secretary of the Navy Daniels are claiming credit for the proposed naval appropriations it is interesting to hark back to the record which shows Mr. Daniels as late as last December declaring that the "little navy" program originally adopted would strain the "backbone" of our country. Not so long a time before that the President had denounced preparedness as hysteria and sanctified Josephus in turning down the General Staff recommendations for larger ships on the theory that "tomorrow's developments abroad may require modifications of the characteristics" of the types of ships proposed. But Josephus is undismayed and calls attention to the fact that this measure will make the United States the second sea power in the world and that "the first recommendation for this continuing policy was made by the President." Not so gay is Representative Kitchen, who told the House that just before the vote was taken two months ago on the enlarged navy. "The Democrats, urged by the administration, were asked to vote against the wild, reckless, extravagant appropriations proposed by the Republicans. I denounced the Republican program as reckless criminality. Yet now the chairman of the committee, the Secretary of the Navy and the President and fellow Democrats ask me to get up here and eat my words!" The North Carolina representative is not the only one eating his words. It is not only for the fact that Josephus has had to do it before, his present menu of words in opposition to a greater navy would strain even his swallowing capacity. The President is saying nothing—now.

There is nothing circumscribed about the mental horizon of Candidate Hughes, who told his California audiences that he had no concern with local differences in politics, but that "the great national aims in view transcend all possible local differences and we are together, reunited, inspired by the loftiest traditions of our historic party and devoted to the accomplishments of those great achievements upon which must rest our enduring prosperity as a nation." This utterance shows the identical spirit manifested in Mr. Hughes's career as Governor and an entire absence of any intention whatever to make his administration, in the event of his election, a vehicle for the reward of politicians regardless of the welfare of the nation. In other words, there will be no Bryan in the Hughes cabinet and no rewards are being held out for shying Progressives who are endeavoring to capitalize their political influence for future preferment. The traditions of the Republican party are not in accord with a tariff policy which does not protect American manufacturers and American labor against unfair competition from abroad; nor do they square with any program of government ownership of merchant vessels in competition with private enterprise. Postoffice propaganda calling for public ownership of the telegraph and telephone lines; demoralization of the Philippine government by premature agitation for independence; and other blundering domestic and foreign policies alike find no favor with Republican principles. Candidate Hughes makes no mistake when he stands four square on the proposition of America first over claims of patronage or expediency in the conduct of our national government.

Lawyer—"Have you been tried for speeding before?" Motorist—"Uh-huh! Forty or fifty times!" Lawyer—"Um—that looks bad. You must be about broke!"—Puck.

"De man dat's allus sayin' what he'd do if he was in somebody else's place," said Uncle Eben, "mos' generally ain't doin' nuffin much on his own account."—Washington Star.

"Charley, dear," said young Mrs. Turkins, "do you favor votes for women?" "Yes, indeed." "And I know why. You think that if I could vote maybe I'd quit talking about it, and I think you're just as mean as you can be!"—Washington Star.

"Your Honor," said the lawyer who was pleading his case lengthily and with many involved arguments, "do you follow me?" "I have so far," returned the judge wearily; "but I'll say frankly that if I thought I could find my way back, I'd quit right here."—Boston Transcript.

He Knew!

While inspecting examination papers recently a teacher found various humorous answers to questions. A class of boys averaging 12 years of age had been examined in geography. The previous day had been devoted to grammar. Among the geographical questions was the following:

"Name the zones."
One promising youth, who had mixed the two subjects, wrote: "There are two zones, masculine and feminine. The masculine is either temperate or intemperate; the feminine is either torrid or frigid!"—Amesbury Standard.

Same Thing.

One of the members of a certain penitentiary found himself in conversation with one of the convicts. The latter was disposed to be confidential and thus unburdened himself: "It is a terrible thing to be known by a number instead of a name, and to feel that all my life I shall be an object of suspicion among the police." "But you will not be alone, my friend," said the visitor, consolingly. "The same thing happens to people who own automobiles."—Philadelphia Star.

Considerable Giraffe.

A prominent circus man comes up from Florida with a tale of what happened when the circus train went into a ditch and the Old Man offered the surrounding gawkies $1 each for bringing the animals back. The price was not good enough for one huge man who wanted it doubled for a giraffe he said he had lived back a ways. The Old Man hadn't missed any giraffe, but he was willing to find out about it. He asked the dorky if he was sure he knew what he was talking about. He was. "Yassah, ah is, an it's a mighty savage giraffe, too. Done bite me twice on de laig. Ah ain't gonna bring him in for no dollah. I wants two." The Old Man gave him $1 down promising him another on delivery of the goods. He took it and went away. Next morning he came in looking as though someone had been cleaning fish on him—lacerated, bloody and lame. Trailing over his shoulder was one end of a rope. At the other end of the rope, battered, half hairless, limp and utterly dejected dragged a ten-foot man-eating Royal Bengal tiger.—Watchman-Examiner.

Personal Proof.

Joseph Jefferson used to tell a story of his visit to a village in the Catskill Mountains. He was taking a cup of tea in the hotel when he heard a colored waiter giving a detailed account of legends. "Yes, sah," he continued, "Rip went up into de mountains, slep' for twenty years, and when he came back hyar, in dis berry town, his own folks didn't know him." "Why," said the listener, "you don't believe the story's true?" "True? Oh course it is. Why," pointing at him, "dat's de man!"—Rochester Post Express.

NEW PASTOR'S FIRST SERMON

The Rev. P. S. Baringer, who has accepted a call to the pastorate of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Redeemer on Wurts street occupied the pulpit of the church on

REV. P. S. BARINGER.

Sunday and preached an eloquent sermon to the large congregation who had assembled to hear him. Pastor Baringer will assume his pastoral duties on August 30 when he will take up his residence in this city. He succeeds the Rev. H. E. Snyder as pastor of the church.

STRINGENT QUARANTINE.

Cities and Villages Growing More Strict in Their Ordinances.

Quarantine regulations to guard against the infantile paralysis epidemic are being enacted generally by cities and villages through the state. Valatie has just passed an ordinance barring children under 16 years and also requires house to house canvassers and collectors to secure permits from the health department.

A camping party composed of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lenahan, Miss Elizabeth Callahan and Miss Marian Leonard, all of Newburgh, returned home from Niagara Falls as upon their arrival at their camp site near there they were told they would not be permitted to leave the premises.

In Poughkeepsie children under 16 years are not permitted to enter stores.

Gun Toter is Released.

While application was being made to Judge Hasbrouck at Saturday's special term of the supreme court for a writ of habeas corpus in the case of The People against Asa Countryman, which was granted, Judge Jenkins was holding a hearing on the return of a similar writ in the same case and discharged Countryman. Countryman was arrested for carrying a gun and Police Justice Mooney of East Kingston imposed a fine of $25 and a jail sentence of six months, thereby exceeding his jurisdictional limitations, which are defined by law. Brinnier & Canfield appeared before Judge Hasbrouck for the writ in Countryman's behalf; John W. Eckert procured the writ from Judge Jenkins and the discharge of Countryman.

Automobile Collision.

An Overland touring car owned by a man from Binghamton crashed into one of William Miller's taxicabs on the Plank Road near the residence of John Walker late Saturday night. The taxi was being driven by Levan Hasbrouck and was badly damaged by the Overland, whose owner was driving in the middle of the road. The Overland narrowly missed striking another of Miller's taxis driven by Philip Ryan which was a short distance ahead of the car driven by Hasbrouck. Flashlight pictures showing the taxi after it had been thrown against the guard rail alongside the road were taken by William Longyear for use in the trial of any lawsuit which Mr. Miller may bring against the Binghamton autist.

Three Automobilists Fined.

Policeman James V. Simpson had a busy session on Saturday rounding up three automobilists for speeding on Broadway. The first man to fall into the net of the law gave his name as William F. Ford. He was fined $5 and paid. The next was Alton W. Miller who was also fined $5 and paid. The third man was Samuel Arons running his car over 25 miles an hour. He was in a hurry to get out of town and put up a cash bond for $10 for his appearance in court. He failed to make his appearance and Recorder Lang declared the bond forfeited.

Beacon Man a Regular.

Adrian St. John of Beacon, who left Camp Whittman last month as a second lieutenant in the Twenty-second New York Engineers, has been transferred from the state militia to the regular army. His new commission is with the First United States Engineers.

White Eagles Won.

The White Eagles defeated the Americans Stars on Sunday afternoon on the Delaware avenue grounds by a score of 13 to 12. The feature of the game was the scoring of four runs in the first inning by the Eagles.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

The Up-to-Date Store is a pretty busy place these days. They have marked down their $4 and $5 crepe de chine and other high grade wares to $2.50. Look at the big window display.

SCHOOLS LIKELY TO REMAIN CLOSED

Mayor Canfield has called a special meeting of the board of health for Tuesday evening at which time the question of opening the city schools will be taken up. The members of the board of education will be extended an invitation to be present at the meeting. From what could be learned it is hardly likely that the schools will open on September 5, owing to the infantile paralysis situation.

Up to noon today no new and no suspicious cases had been reported to Dr. Frank A. Johnston, the health officer.

WATER FOR HIGH SCHOOL.

Pipe of Adequate Size Has Been Put in From Street.

When the Kingston High School finally opens after the summer vacation the faculty and pupils will find that there will be a plentiful supply of running city water on hand. When the school was built it was supplied with city water through a two inch pipe, and the supply has been inadequate.

The matter of supplying the school with enough water was taken up with the water board, and Superintendent Harrison has had a force of men busy removing the two inch pipe line and replacing it with a six inch line. The job of installing the six inch line has been what Superintendent Harrison calls "a ticklish job" for it was necessary to run a sixteen foot tunnel under the front entrance of the school directly under the massive stone steps. The job has been finally completed and today the men were busy connecting the pipe.

By La Raconteuse.

For general sport wear a suit of green La Jerez is both practical and smart. Novel buttons serve to trim and fasten the coat. The deep pointed cuffs and pockets together with the square collar are interesting details. The semi-sport hat and buckskin shoes serve as appropriate finishing touches.

Costly Attempts to Save.

William Earl's experience in a lawsuit brought against him by George P. Cowles of Catskill may be sufficient to teach him the wisdom of employing a lawyer if he is sued again. Mr. Cowles and Mr. Earl own adjoining properties at Catskill. An alleyway and stairway which enables Mr. Earl to reach tenements in the rear of his property is claimed by Mr. Cowles, who brought an action to restrain him from using it. Mr. Earl employed Howard Jones to serve a notice of restraint and later wrote personally to Osborn, Bloodgood & Wilbur, who were counsel for Mr. Cowles, in regard to effecting a settlement. That firm replied they would do nothing except in the presence of Mr. Jones, whereupon Mr. Earl replied by letter that he had employed Mr. Jones only to file an answer. No further appearance was made by Mr. Jones, and later judgment was taken against Mr. Earl by default. Then he retained Corporation Counsel William D. Brinnier of this city, who moved before Judge Hasbrouck for an order opening the default. The motion was opposed by the Hon. Frank H. Osborn of Catskill. Judge Hasbrouck reserved decision.

Improving the Baths.

The Turkish and Russian baths at the Dr. C. O. Sahler Sanitarium will be closed for a period of two weeks to enable extended improvements to be made. Owing to the increased patronage of the sanitarium, the capacity of the baths has become inadequate to meet the demands therefore necessitating a much larger plant. While these improvements are being carried out a thorough renovating and redecorating of the entire interior will be done, which will put these popular baths up to a standard not to be excelled.

In City Court.

In the case of Lucy Waterman against Maria Van Antwerp, an action to recover for goods sold and delivered, adjournment was taken in the city court on Saturday until September 1. Arthur C. Connolly appeared for the plaintiff and Frank W. Brooks for the defendant.

WILHELM PREACHES FAREWELL SERMON

The Rev. F. P. Wilhelm preached his farewell sermon on Sunday evening to his congregation at the Immanuel Evangelical Lutheran Church on Livingston street. He leaves later in the week for Bronxville where he accepted a call some time ago. Pastor Wilhelm will be greatly missed not only by the members of his own congregation, but by the city at large. No pastor has been selected as yet to succeed him at the Livingston street church.

Before County Judge Jenkins.

A hearing was had before Judge Jenkins at county court chambers on Saturday in the matter of the general assignment of Barnett Frank to William D. Brinnier, Jr., for the benefit of creditors. The account was approved and an order granted discharging the assignee, Mayor Palmer Canfield, Jr., appeared for the assignee.

An Ingenious Scarecrow.
A writer in the Farm and Fireside tells of one of the most effective plans for keeping birds from cherries and other tree and garden fruits. "Take two or three two-pound Manila paper bags, dip them in linseed oil to make them waterproof, place half a dozen peas in each, blow them up full of air and tie up the open end. Fasten these bags in the trees, two or three to each tree, or to stakes in berry fields with bits of stout twine about six inches long. The wind, blowing the bags about, will rattle the peas inside them, and the unaccustomed objects and the rattling noise will keep the birds out of every tree or bed so decorated and do it effectively."

Took a Chance.
The late Eugene F. Ware had filed a demurrer and was arguing the case before Judge Samuel F. Miller. The latter stopped counsel with the remark: "Mr. Ware, there is no use taking up any more time of this court. Why, that question has been decided against you by every court in Christendom." "Oh, yes," replied Mr. Ware in his genial and pleasant way. "I am aware of that, your honor, but I know your honor occasionally makes decisions contrary to every court in Christendom, and I thought perhaps this would be one of the times." "Go on, Mr. Ware. Go on, sir. I will hear you. Go on, sir."—Case and Comment.

RECORD ON TOBOGGAN

Louisville Team Lost Twenty-Six Straight Contests.

Colonels Were of Old Major League American Association—Worst Losing Streak Ever Made in Baseball History.

There is one baseball record that is club is anxious to overturn, and which everybody concerned will be glad to let stand until the end of time. That is the record of consecutive defeats, hung up in 1889 by the Louisville club of the old major league American association.

The string was finally broken by a 7 to 3 victory over the St. Louis team, which put an end to the worst losing streak the game has ever known. Up to the time of the victory over St. Louis the Colonels had lost 28 games in a row, and the few wavering supporters of the club were on the verge of abandoning all hope that the team would ever win a game.

The dubious feat of the Louisville club remains, and may always remain, the major league record. Only once has it been equaled in a minor league, and it has never been surpassed in any professional circuit. In 1913 the Meridian (Miss.) club of the Cotton States league was nicknamed for 28 consecutive wallpops, and had the world's record in sight when the team fell down and won a game.

The record losing streak of the National league was pulled off in 1890, the year of the Brotherhood war, when the Pittsburgh club dropped 23 games in a row. The whole bunch of Smoky City players went over to the Players' league team, which included most of the old Pittsburgh favorites.

Games were transferred to other cities and even to neighboring towns in Pennsylvania and Ohio and West Virginia. The club also set up another record that year by losing three games in a day.

The American league losing streak record of 20 games was set up by Boston in 1906. Jimmy Collins, who managed the Red Sox from the first, and who had kept the club in the first division and won two pennants prior to the fatal year, was charged by the Boston fans with neglecting his duties, and the veterans of the outfit seemed to go all to pieces. As a result Boston finished the season in the cellar, losing 105 games and winning only 49.

REBEL M'TIGUE IS BOOSTED

Buck Freeman, Old-Time Slugger of Boston Americans, Hands Ex-Tiger Large Bouquet.

Buck Freeman, one-time slugger with the Boston Americans, and now umpiring in the international league, comes to bat with the assertion that Rebel McTigue, former Brave and Tiger leader, but at present pitching for the Toronto Leafs, has more stuff than any other pitcher he ever worked behind.

McTigue, who, despite a good record on the spring training trip, was turned back to Toronto by Manager Jennings after five innings of big-league ball, is making quite a record in the minor organization.

With a sixth-place club, the lengthy southpaw has registered six wins, four defeats, one tie game and twice hurled one-hit shutouts, one against Rochester on May 30 and the other against Providence, league leaders. In each of the above contests the hits were of the decidedly fluke variety, and the slow roller to the infield which spoiled a perfect record in Rochester on Memorial day came after two men had been retired in the ninth inning.

The pitcher twirled three times in one week, winning all three of the contests, two of which were shutouts, be-slides playing right field on two other occasions. In addition to heaving a fine brand of ball, McTigue is hitting the ball in great shape, as his nine hits in 22 trips to the plate during the past week would indicate.

Curious Raincoats.

When rain falls in tropical countries there is no mistake about it. The rain comes as if it meant to sweep away all such trifles as trees and bushes. A man who goes out in this deluge must protect himself, but he finds that a mackintosh of the lightest kind has its disadvantages, for if it keeps the rain out it also keeps the heat in.

The raincoat devised by the Mexicans is called a "chino" and is so porous that the heat of the body readily escapes, while, owing to its construction, it keeps the wearer dry. The chino is made of numberless long, narrow strips of dried palm leaf, one end of each strip being woven into a light fabric and the rest falling loose. The wearer of this garment rushes as he walks, and the rain pattering upon it makes a pleasant sound. Arrived at the house, he takes off his palm leaf hat, shakes it and hangs it up to dry. Then he slips off his chino, shakes that also and hangs it up. He himself is untouched by the rain, but the chino as it hangs up looks like a huge, damp brown cascade.

Healthful Whipping.

It is considered beneficial to be whipped or spanked provided it is done mechanically. In the mechanical therapy departments of up to date institutions the whipping post, a mechanical device for therapeutic padding, is an accredited healing machine. You are whipped by straps of heavy cloth or leather attached to two rapidly revolving posts. When you take the treatment you step backward into the flying whips and receive their blows upon your legs, back, abdomen or chest, depending upon the malady from which you are suffering. The impact of the straps is just sufficient to set the blood in free circulation. There is no smarting, stinging sensation because the straps are broad enough to eliminate any possibility of a cutting blow. You are padded rather than lashed. The whipping post is valuable in many types of nervousness.—Popular Science Monthly.

Using Up Energy.

"A calory is the amount of heat required to raise the temperature of one gram of water 4 degrees Fahrenheit. If a man rises from his chair and walks about eight feet, then returns, he uses up one of these units," writes Dr. Edwin F. Bowers in "Fidesteping Ill Health."

"Yet the body, even while resting or quiet in sleep, is constantly using up energy. It is also giving off heat about as rapidly as a sixteen candle power electric lamp."

Statuary Hall.

The national statuary hall was formerly the old hall of the house of representatives in Washington. It was established by act of congress on July 2, 1864. The president was authorized to invite each state to contribute to the collection to be formed with two statues, in either marble or bronze, of deceased citizens of the state whom, "for historic renown or for civil or military services," the state would consider as worthy of commemoration in this national hall of statuary. About twenty-five states have contributed statues to the hall, some of them only one.

Defendant in Separation Action Tells
How He Came to Get the "Gette"
Dissolving Ties—Blames Jacob
Furmansky for Domestic Difficulties.

A case promising unusual interest was heard before Judge Hasbrouck at Saturday's special term of the supreme court when application for alimony and counsel fee was made in the action for separation brought by Libbie Jacobson against Julius Jacobson.

The separation is asked on the ground of abandonment. According to Mrs. Jacobson, who was represented by Judge Van Eiten, Jacobson went to New York and obtained from a Jewish rabbi a "gette" divorce, which is an ecclesiastical separation, and on the same day it was served the defendant left the place where he was staying. He announced his intention of going to Africa to live with his brother and it was necessary to get an order of arrest to prevent him from leaving the country until he could be served with papers in the present action. Formerly he had been in partnership with his brother, Max Jacobson, but had sold out his interest there and was well able to support and maintain his wife, to whom he had been paying $3 per week. As it would be necessary to get out of town witnesses in regard to the "gette" divorce, he asked a liberal allowance for counsel fee.

Joseph M. Fowler, who appeared for Jacobson with Corporation Counsel William D. Brinnier, of counsel, said that Jacobson specifically denied that he had abandoned or threatened to abandon his wife, or that he had converted his property into cash for the purpose of leaving the country. He also denied knowledge of the contents of the so-called "gette" divorce granted by the rabbi. There had been trouble between them which Jacobson alleged was due to the intermeddling of Jacob Furmansky. They were married fifteen years ago, when Mrs. Jacobson was fifty years old and Jacobson was twenty-five years old. She had children by a former husband and he had supported her and her children well and educated them. Mrs. Jacobson had inherited considerable property from her first husband and Jacobson had spent considerable money in keeping it up. She rented one-half of the house for $7 or $8 a month and received $4 or $4.50 a month rent for the barn. Jacobson was a peddler who started in business with a pack. On one or two occasions he had been in business for himself but always with borrowed money. A fire had resulted in a loss as he had recovered only $3,000 insurance on a stock inventory of $7,000. Later he bought the stock of Simon Brothers but after a few weeks sold the business and after paying all his debts he had only $150 left, which was all the money he possessed. He had been paying her $3 a week although he receives only $7 a week as handy man for his brother. He objects to the treatment he has received from her children and objects to supporting them, but he is willing to support and to live with his wife.

Judge Hasbrouck reserved decision.

Ancient Rome's Army. It is an astonishing thing to be told that the organized force of Rome consisted of a regular army that at no time seems to have exceeded 275,000 men. That is less than the army of Greece or of Bulgaria, yet the Roman empire of that time stretched from the Fifth of Forth to the Persian gulf. The provinces consented to Roman rule because it gave them good government, undisturbed order and an organized system of law and justice.—Youth's Companion.

In Bad Both Ways. During a social evening a woman sang for the guests. One of the guests turned to a meek-looking little man sitting at his side and said: "How awful! Who can she be?" "That," replied the man addressed, "is my wife." "Oh, I beg your pardon!" stammered the other. "She's really a—I know she'd sing beautifully if she made a better selection of her music. Who do you suppose wrote that song?" "I am the author of that song!" replied the meek-looking little man.

Praising Poverty. When a man argues from his personal experience that poverty has made him what he is, he erects on a somewhat wobbly basis a somewhat questionable idol. Were all small boys depicted at an early age to the North pole, it is probable that those who managed to get back to Philadelphia by foot would have had another deep and full experience. But the story would not be complete unless it included a choice collection of birching bones.—New Republic.

A. R. PRESIDENTS DELAY REPLY

Will Take No Action Until Each President Whose Road is Involved Has Expressed Himself—Expect Full Representation Tuesday.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, August 21.—The reply of the railroads of the United States to President Wilson's ultimatum, fixing terms to avert the threatened nationwide strike, will be delivered after executives representing every road involved have passed upon the plan. Nearly one hundred railroad executives here today decided to take no action until each road threatened with a tie-up had spoken through its president. The executives expect to have a complete representation of the roads involved here tomorrow, and the entire attendance then will go before President Wilson at the White House.

The railroad executives will not take definite action until the president has again outlined his eight-hour day demand. According to today's plans the executives will listen to the president's proposal, and take it under advisement. A meeting of the entire group of executives will then be held. This will probably be tomorrow afternoon but it may not be until Wednesday morning. At this meeting the brains of railroad management in this country will say the final word that may throw the entire life of the country into chaos through the greatest railroad strike ever planned.

Desultory conferences throughout today kept the railroad executives and their committee of railroad managers, in a turmoil of heated discussion. Sharp differences of opinion, aggravated by the arrival of new executives with fresh ideas, were apparent. A small but influential group sought to secure a complete acceptance of the president's proposal but they met determined opposition.

The "Old Guard" of railroad domination came to Washington today, and came prepared to fight. The "Old Guard" who fought railroad battles in the days of Harriman, the Goulds, and the older Vanderbills, arrived with some very clear ideas as to their position, but they were "willing to talk things over," and "abide by the majority decision."

Louis W. Hill, president of the Great Northern, was the center of the chattering group as soon as he reached the hotel where the railroad presidents have their headquarters. He would make no statement.

E. P. Ripley, Santa Fe head, veteran of the early railroad struggles of the west, with his seventy years borne but lightly on his broad shoulders, looked over the groups of railroad presidents as he entered the hotel lobby with a grim smile.

"This is sure a hell of a game," was his only comment.

Judge J. M. Dickinson, former secretary of war and now operating receiver of the Rock Island lines, also arrived today. He too was silent. W. L. Mapother, of the Louisville and Nashville; W. B. Storey, vice-president of the Santa Fe, and George T. Slade, vice-president of the Northern Pacific, put in their appearance.

The managers' committee today began to get results from a campaign among business organizations, manufacturers' association and shippers' associations, seeking to influence President Wilson. Scores of telegrams reached Washington urging that the entire controversy be settled by arbitration.

Meanwhile the representatives of the four brotherhoods held a brief meeting, decided that nothing would be done today, and adjourned until tomorrow. The brotherhood representatives heard numerous telegrams from their home locals read congratulating them upon their position and urging them to stand firm.

New York, Aug. 21.—Denunciation of lax divorce laws and the growth of radicalism in America formed two leading features of the report of the national committee on public morals, presented today at the 15th annual convention of the American Federation of Catholic Societies. The report was presented by Edward Treney K. S. G., of Brooklyn, chairman of the committee.

After calling attention to the fact that more than 1,000,000 divorces have been granted during the last ten years by American courts and the fact that federal efforts to secure a uniform divorce law have failed, the report says:

"We can only repeat our denunciation of pagan state laws that make easy the separation of what God has joined together and renew our demand for a national law so stringent that no longer shall the finger of scorn be pointed at the United States as second only to Japan in the number of divorces granted to people of doubtful morality."

Dealing with radical sociology, the report says: "The radical sociologist is poisoning the wells of public morality by the advocacy of birth control, sex hygiene, regulation by the state of marriage on an animal plane, rejection of the wedding of men and women through God's minister. The next move of the new philosophers may be to do away with the old rite of matrimony and go the limit, with a civil magistrate certificate to protect those with property interests and free love for the proletariat, the state to care for the children."

The report characterizes the radical as a tireless worker who turns to the unorganized ranks of labor when he finds his efforts rejected by the thoughtful trade unionist. In his code of materialism and class hatred, says the report, there is no room for morality of the Christian code. The work of the radicals in Mexico is described thus: "Tons of anarchistic literature sent across the Rio Grande during the past five years for which the radicals of the United States are said to have contributed as much as $1,000 a month, have debauched many Mexicans. The pernicious propaganda spread until the bandit chiefs found themselves at the head of military mobs bent upon hurling Christ from the so-called republic. Aided by other revolutionary factions a savage minority has tortured and demoralized a nation of 15,000,000 Christians. Public morality in Mexico is at a discount, but it will be restored in due time through the Christian morality planted deep in the hearts of the people by the Catholic missionary."

The report states that success has been gained in regulating moving pictures and the stage, but calls for further improvement in these lines.

TO ANSWER MURDER CHARGE.
Boston Youth Brought Back to Poughkeepsie by Officer.

John Lee, of Boston, Mass., 19 years of age, has been arrested in Boston, and brought to Poughkeepsie to answer the charge of murder. It is alleged that he was the last person in company of John Doherty, whose lifeless body was found floating in the Hudson river above Poughkeepsie last month. Both were companions on the steamer Rensselaer of the Hudson Navigation line on the night of July 10, and they were sleeping together when last seen. Lee has told several stories, all of them differing, and he declined to come to New York State without a requisition. McCarthy, who was a companion of the two men came voluntarily and told all that he knew of the case. The theory is that the two men were in an altercation, that Lee struck Doherty over the head and threw the body in the river.

Action for Accounting.

A hearing was had this morning before Judge Jenkins as referee in the action brought by the Hon. Jacob Rice against John D. Schoonmaker for an accounting of the co-partnership profits of Schoonmaker & Rice. The accounting is asked for the time during which the firm was engaged in the freighting business in New York harbor and along the Hudson river, from the early 90's until 1913, during all of which time, Senator Rice claims, there never was any accounting between himself and Mr. Schoonmaker. Senator Rice was examined briefly this morning and the matter was adjourned. He testified to the formation of the co-partnership and the character of the work carried on by the firm. The books were kept by Arthur Connors, who is now a partner of Mr. Schoonmaker. Corporation Counsel William D. Brinmier represented Senator Rice; Howard Chipp is counsel for Mr. Schoonmaker.

Seeking to Avert Strike.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, Aug. 21.—Mayor Mitchell arrived here today from the military training camp at Plattsburgh, determined to avert the threatened street car strike. He conferred with his advisers after reaching the city and then gave instruction that the leaders of the carmen's union be summoned. Chairman Oscar S. Straus of the public service commission is also hastening back from his vacation, but part of his journey is by automobile over bad roads and he may not reach here today.

ELMENDORF NOT LIKELY TO RECOVER

Dr. O'Meara so Testifies at Hearing in Weber Case Before Recorder Lang—The Assault Described by an Eye-Witness.

That Charles Elmendorf, one of the victims of the Mapleton tragedy, would not recover from his injuries was the opinion of Dr. Mark O'Meara, when he was called to testify in the hearing of Joseph Weber, charged with assault in the first degree, which was held in recorder's court before Recorder Lang this morning. At the close of the testimony given by the witnesses called by District Attorney Traver, an adjournment until next Tuesday morning was asked by Frank W. Brooks, attorney for Weber. The request for an adjournment was granted by Recorder Lang.

Slight Hope for Elmendorf.

Dr. Mark O'Meara was the first witness called at the hearing today. He said he had received a telephone call and had responded. He found Elmendorf lying in the gutter with his skull fractured. Elmendorf was unconscious, and has been practically unconscious ever since. Dr. O'Meara had Elmendorf removed to the Benedictine Sanitarium, where he has been operated on several times and pieces of bone removed. "I don't think he will recover," said Dr. O'Meara when questioned by District Attorney Traver as to the probable outcome of Elmendorf's injuries.

Mrs. Herrick Tells of Shooting.

Mrs. Lois Herrick, who resides in the same house on Snyder avenue with the Elmendorfs, was the next witness called. She told of the various troubles between the Webers and the Elmendorfs which had led to both families appearing in recorder's court several times. Children and the chickens were the cause of all the trouble. Getting down to the trouble of the day before the shooting, she said that the Elmendorf boy and the Halstead boy were out playing in front of the house. They had stretched a fishline across the road about a foot high and were playing catching fish. She said when she looked out of the window she saw that Weber had caught his foot in the line, and had broken the line.

The afternoon of the shooting she had seen Weber go by the Elmendorf house and go to his house. She told who all sat on the porch and said that she suddenly looked up and saw Weber standing in the road pointing a gun at them. She called to the others to hurry into the house, but it was too late and a report followed. She saw Mrs. Elmendorf clutch her side and then the women and children all ran into the Elmendorf house hollering and screaming and praying and ran all through the house.

She Called Charley.

Mrs. Herrick said she remembered calling "Charley, Charley, Charley" and that someone else called out for Charley too. She said that at the time of the shooting Charley was out in the back of the house, but she did not know where.

Looked Out Window.

She said that after a while she looked out the window and saw Charley lying on the ground across the road with Weber beating him over the head with rocks. She ran out and picked up a stone and threw it at Weber, who after hitting Elmendorf over the head again with his gun, chased her. She stumbled and fell and picked herself up again and ran. Weber caught up to her and hit her in the back of the head with the gun. Somehow she got into the house. That was all she saw of the affair.

She with the others were later removed to the hospital and had their wounds dressed.

What Buntin Heard.

Frank Buntin of Howland avenue said that he and his family and some visitors sat on his front porch and heard a shot. About a quarter of an hour later he saw Weber come walking by the house. Weber carried something in his hand that looked like two sticks. He was too far away for Buntin to be positive that it was a broken gun.

Threatens Buntin.

Mr. Buntin said that Weber as he passed called him a "hunchbacked—" and held up the piece he held in his hand and shouted "If I had another shell I would blow your wife's brains out and yours too."

Buntin Goes for Gun.

Buntin when he heard Weber threaten him went into the house for a gun, and when he came back Weber had gone.

It developed that Buntin had a rifle in the house, but it was unloaded. He used it to shoot crows and cats with.

Never Had Trouble Before.

Mr. Buntin said he had known Weber for twenty-five years and had never had trouble with him before. He had also worked with Weber at various times. So far as he knew his family had never had any trouble with the Weber family.

Mrs. Buntin corroborates husband.

Mrs. Kate Combie testified that Weber passed her house and called out "Goodbye, Kate, I am going to give myself up."

Others Testified.

Among the other witnesses who testified was Policeman Kuehn, who made the arrest.

AUTOMOBILE NOTES.

The federal trade commission, almost ready to report to congress on its findings during months of investigation of the cause of the increased cost of gasoline, today suddenly ordered a further extended investigation of the industry. Field agents all over the United States were instructed to get all possible information concerning the cost increase from operators and dealers. No explanation was given for the extension of the investigation.

To determine the quality and stability of the repair work which has been completed recently on the old iron ore road near Barrytown, a delegation from the Poughkeepsie Automobile Club, with Warren Delano, whose estate borders on that highway, A. C. Rapelle, county engineer, and Harry Pottenburgh, supervisor of the town of Rhinebeck, inspected the road Friday afternoon. The inspection was made primarily at the urgent request of Mr. Delano who is interested in having it in excellent condition because as a great horseman he uses it daily to a considerable degree. The party of inspection rode over the length of the road which had been filled with dirt and rock taken from the lower end of a vein of rock containing iron ore which is situated on the farm property of John Armstrong, Charley a distance south of the Delano estate. Although the material had been placed on the road only a short time, the inspectors found that it had been ground to a powder and only added to the amount of dust in dry weather and of mud in wet weather.

Mohonk Wins Close Game.

Mohonk Lake, Aug. 21.—Mohonk won a "nip-and-tuck" game Saturday from the team representing the Poughkeepsie State Hospital, the score being 10 to 8. Although almost half of the runs scored on both sides resulted through errors, the holding was brilliant at times. Delamater and Davis pulled off some good running catches for Mohonk, while Chase made a good catch of Churchill's bid for a hit and Pine's work at short was also worthy of mention. The visitors rallied in the last three innings and would have won the game had not Mohonk scored an equal number of runs in the seventh and eighth.

Old Homestead Clambake.

The annual clambake of the Old Homestead Club held at Coddington's Dock on Sunday was an unqualified success. During the afternoon Richard K. Fox, foreman of Rapid Hesse Company, was given a chance to distinguish himself. There were several Italian boys swimming near the place where the bake was held, and one little fellow got into too deep water and was sinking for the last time when Fox plunged in and rescued him.

AN ECHO OF THE FIGHTING IN EAST AFRICA.

This 4.1 inch gun was destroyed by the Germans in East Africa before their retreat on Mochi. It was sacrificed because of the pressing advance of the force under General Smit in that vicinity. Rank and High Heels.

Root heels are of Persian origin, and were originally attached to sandals in order that the wearers might keep their feet above the burning sand. Heels also inches high have been known. When high heels were introduced in Venice they were called "chappines," and were highly decorated. The height of the "chappines" proclaimed the rank of the wearer.

WILBUR FEDS LOSE TO MYSTICS 9-4

Sunday afternoon at McVey's field the Mystic baseball team of this city gave the Wilbur Feds team one of the surprises of their life by defeating them by a score of 9-4. The Mystics, who have been defeated three times by the Feds in close battles this season, came down strong Sunday and showed their opponents they could play the game.

From the first inning to the last the Mystics clouted the ball, especially in the third, when they brought seven men across home plate. Stoudt, who pitched for the Feds, pitched good ball outside of a few innings, and support was lacking. Doyle, who pitched for the Mystics, pitched good ball and in the pinches he held his own. Young Rourke, the Mystics shortstop, played the game of his life, missing about one chance out of a dozen. The score by innings:

Wilbur Feds 0 0 0 1 0 0 3 0-4
Mystics 9 0 0 7 0 0 1 1 0-9

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER.

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, Aug. 21.—"Sunny Jim" Gilmore is out of baseball "for all time, thank you"—but he still loves the game.

The man who was baseball's most conspicuous figure during the stirring days of 1914 and 1915, now leads a placid life as a partner in the firm of Coyle & Gilmore, wholesalers in fine writing paper.

"A routine life never made a big appeal to me, but I must confess that I like this business a bit better than trying to make the folks believe they needed a third major league," commented the once-time prey of the Feds. "I like battling and I like action, but, when I think of it, I don't regret my two years in baseball. It certainly cured me slightly of my desire for both."

"I never thought it was possible for a man to hop around as much as I did during 1914."

"How was it?" we asked. "55,000 miles—not including distance covered foot and on street cars or in autos from January 1 to December 31, 1914," was the rather startling answer.

"Feds Loss $500,000"—Gilmore.

"How much actually was lost in the Federal League venture?" was our next question.

"The net loss did not go much beyond $500,000," came Gilmore's surprising reply. "Those who have been making wild estimates of our losses forget two or three very important things in our favor. In the first place we didn't pay a dollar for any of our players. When the league broke up those players were sold at sums ranging from $2,000 up to $25,000, which income helped to pay out part of the first deficit."

"Furthermore, the National Commission made settlements in one way or another in favor of our club owners. That helped further to lessen the net loss. For instance, Phil Buhlman, a gross loser of about $150,000 or so. But it was awarded a settlement of about $50,000 and got something like $25,000 from the sale of its players, equipment, etc."

"The Brooklyn Club, of course, was the heaviest gross loser. That was due to the fact that the Wards tied up about $350,000 or a bit more in their plant. But the National Commission awarded them a $400,000 settlement. So, you see, even in Brooklyn the loss wasn't anything very tremendous."

Weeghman Ultimate Winner.

"The Chicago club lost money, yet in the end, I think the stockholders profited. Charlie Weeghman and his crowd probably tied up $500,000 in the Federal League, this including park, stands, etc. When peace came they purchased the Cubs for $150,000. That made their total baseball investment $650,000. Before the Feds began operating the Cub owners wanted about $1,250,000 for their property. Our war made them content to take $450,000. Therefore, the present Cub owners, for an investment of $650,000 have secured a club once valued at $1,250,000 and in addition, they have a new plant which was a bargain in the original price asked for the Cubs in the days before the Feds came."

"Phil Ball lost some money operating in St. Louis. But by becoming a Fed magnate Phil ultimately realized his ambition—to own the Browns. What he lost as a Fed he probably will be able to make up in two or three years as a Brownie owner. The Baltimore club actually made $9,000 during the 1914 season. It lost $50,000 during 1915. That made a net loss of $41,000. Baltimore had probably $75,000 tied up in stands etc., but it got back part of that. So Baltimore's dead loss probably wasn't much more than $75,000 according to my reckoning."

"Buffalo and Kansas City lost during both years, yet neither had much involved in the way of stands, equipment, etc. Their overhead expense wasn't great. When peace came they didn't lose much by the scrapping of their ball parks. Harry Sinclair made money as a Federal Leagueer, through the sale of players after peace came."

Why Feds Quit.

"Why did the Feds submit to peace and go out of business?"

"Because the chance to quit came at a time when some of our magnates were in a mood for it and also because the terms offered us by organized baseball were very fine indeed," Gilmore replied. "The death of Robert B. Ward was a terrific blow to us. He was fighter and a Federal League enthusiast; he would have gone to the limit of his bank roll to win out in our fight."

"Ward died just at a time when some of our magnates were a bit discouraged by the review of the 1915 season. Immediately following his death came overtures, and almost at first, from organized baseball. Later they were put into concrete shape."

"We found that the terms of settlement offered us by organized baseball were far better than we had expected. The matter was put up to our magnates. Weeghman and Ball favored their acceptance because the terms permitted them to buy Federal League franchises. The Ward family was tired of baseball and voted for peace. Sinclair wanted to go ahead with the fight but he trailed with the majority faction. The Buffalo and Kansas City clubs were defunct. Baltimore early in the negotiations declared that the terms were acceptable to it."

"So peace resulted."

"And," we cut in, "you're through with baseball, eh?"

Gilmore Says "Never Again."

"Yep, as far as running a league is concerned—through for all time. Since I quit baseball in an active way I have found that much money can be made with less effort. Joe Coyle and I started this business a year ago. We have applied to it the same sort of hustling principles that I used in baseball. And within that time the business has grown to such a point that I believe we rank among the biggest concerns of our kind in the country."

"So why should I tackle baseball again when I can make much more money with less effort in the mercantile game? But, I still love baseball and I slip away every afternoon that I can to see the Yanks or Giants repelling the invasion of foreign foes on the Polo Grounds."

Hot Livers.

(By Frank G. Menke.)

The Dodgers' pennantward march still continues. The Cubs were shut out yesterday with one hit.

But the Phillies are hanging on and not losing any ground.

In the American League the fight is still warm between the first six clubs. The Nationals and Athletics are the only ones out of it.

The Giants received their fourth coat of whitewash since they started the present trip. It was also their eighth defeat out of nine starts. The Cardinals applied the brush yesterday.

Hughes came to the relief of Allen and prevented a rally by the Reds. The Braves won by one run.

Wetterhahn's Defense.

Technicalities predominated in the case of The People of the State of New York against David Wetterhahn, which was heard before Judge Hasbrouck on Saturday on a motion by the defendant to dismiss the complaint because the summons was not properly endorsed with the statement that the action was brought to recover a penalty under the agriculture law and the section of the law which it is claimed that Mr. Wetterhahn violated. Frederick E. W. Darrow, who appeared for the department of agriculture in opposition to the motion, insisted that Mr. Wetterhahn's attorney, Joseph M. Fowler, had waived any right to such a motion because he had procured an order extending the time in which to answer, and the order of extension was intended merely to carry the case beyond the limitations of time within the statute of limitations. It being impossible to commence the suit again because of that statute Judge Hasbrouck reserved decision.

PORT EVEN.

Port Even, Aug. 21.—A number of friends of Mrs. Alonzo Terpening gave her a complete surprise at her pretty home, corner of Bayard and Hasbrouck streets Friday evening, the event being the celebration of the birthday of Mrs. Terpening. AN ALLAREN PROBLEM.

Is Partition Suit an Attempt to Break a Will?

Whether an action for partition of the Elizabeth Whitney property at Allaren, in the town of Shandaken, shall be construed as an attempt to break Mrs. Whitney's will and thereby debar the person bringing the action from sharing in the estate is the interesting question raised before Judge Hasbrouck on Saturday on a demurrer interposed in the partition action brought by Angelina Whitney against Elizabeth Whitney and others.

The plaintiff is a school teacher and the defendant conducts a boarding house on the property formerly owned by their mother. The latter provided by her will that they should have the use of the property during their lifetime, and provided further that any child who attempted to break the will should be debarred from sharing in the estate.

Miss Angelina Whitney says she wants the money value of her interest in the property and claims that she has the right to maintain an action for the partition of the property. The other members of the family contend that it was their mother's intention to provide a home for them and therefore she made the provision that any child attempting to break the will should be debarred from sharing in the estate, and insist that the action in partition is the same as an attempt to break the will by changing the nature of the interest which Mrs. Mrs. Whitney intended to give Elizabeth under the will. The demurrer was argued by Judge Van Etten for the defendants and was opposed by Judge Jenkins, who appeared as counsel for Traver & Murray, attorneys for the plaintiff. Judge Hasbrouck reserved decision.

of the co-respondents named in the first suit is again named. Henry M. Eldridge of Port Plain originally represented the plaintiff, who is now represented by Frederick A. Chew of Troy. Judge Hasbrouck directed that the papers be submitted and reserved decision. An hour afterward, Mr. Chew and his opposing counsel appeared in court and the motion was withdrawn.
